The Man Behind Iconic Finnish Designs

Atejee, 1964

Karuselli, 1965

Remmi, 1969

Yrjö Kukkapuro is one of our most internationally renowned and award-winning furniture designers and one of the most significant modernists in Finnish furniture design. The design work of Kukkapuro is based on both aesthetic and functional innovation, user experience and ergonomics.

During his extraordinarily long career of over 60 years, Yrjö Kukkapuro has created modernistic furniture for the era, which time has proven to be modern classics. Objects designed by Kukkapuro are on display in permanent exhibitions at the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

Kukkapuro's career in design spans the years from mid-50's to the present. These decades have provided several collections whose design language is always coherent and functional.

Lounge Chair

During the late 60's Yrjö Kukkapuro was on the search for new materials to replace plastics in his designs. The departure from plastics pushed him to envision a chair that would be modular and structurally would not need any molding.

Yrjö Kukkapuro designed Remmi series in 1969, and the line has become one of the most popular Kukkapuro products. The basis for the furniture is a skeleton made from tubular steel and wires to support a comfortable layer of upholstered muscles. With the neck rest and ottoman the chair supports the whole body making it a perfect spot to relax. Remmi's modular construction also enables the lounge chair to grow to a sofa for any preferred length.

Now after a long time Remmi has returned back to its origin and is locally produced in Finland in an environmentally conscious way.
